On February 24, 2003 deputy Timothy Oxley drove upon an accident on US-59 in Sugar Land in which a vehicle was submerged in a rain swollen drainage canal with two adults and a child trapped inside.

Deputy Oxley, without hesitation or concern for his personal safety, entered the treacherous waters and retrieved one victim. He then returned and brought a second victim to safety. He again returned to the sinking car and attempted to rescue the child but was unable to gain access.

The actions of deputy Oxley represents a strength of mind and spirit that enabled him to encounter danger with a high level of endurance.

This demonstration of personal bravery reflects greatly upon deputy Oxley's character as a professional police officer and brings honor to himself, his family, his friends, his chosen profession and the organization that he represents.
